MEMBERS-ONLY WORKSHOP - $40 Friday, March 24th - 1:30pm to 4:30pm

Land Platting Workshop SOLD OUT

This hands-on workshop introduces the terminology and techniques used to convert the land descriptions found in deeds, probate, and court records into plats that can be used to identify neighbors, locate property on a map, and reconstruct communities. Learn how to create plats by hand, assemble a group of plats, and place the cluster of neighbors on a modern topo map. You'll benefit from adding this powerful tool to your genealogy toolbox!

OPTIONAL BOX LUNCH - $20

If you're attending Saturday's in-person conference, we are providing the option to pre-purchase a box lunch. If you order a box lunch, you will receive a follow-up email requesting your lunch choices.

You are also welcome to bring your own bagged lunch, or there are several restaurants nearby including Panera, Hello Bistro, and Chipotle.

SATURDAY, MARCH 25, 2023

8:00am - Registration opens / Zoom is live

8:45am - Opening remarks

Using Land Records to Solve Genealogical Problems

Land records can identify an individual's exact location, assist in distinguishing between same-named individuals, provide evidence of migration, and help to prove relationships. Through case studies set in Pennsylvania and surrounding states we'll explore just how valuable land records can be to our research.

Digging Up Land Records Online

There are a lot more land records available online than is readily apparent. By the end of this session you'll have the tools to locate deeds and other land records online across a variety of repositories, and navigate the quirks you're likely to encounter.

Those Neighbors Might be Ancestors

Among the neighbors of our ancestors are possible kin. Clues to their origins. Context for their stories. Neighbors are not just the people on the nearby lines of the census form. This session explores the variety of sources that can help us to discover and prioritize those important neighbors so we can milk their records for clues to our ancestors.

Integrating Tax Records for Genealogical Gold

Deeds and grants are not the only property record available to us. Tax records, when correlated with land records, census records, and maps, can be a powerful tool for reconstructing difficult pre-1850 families.

Question & Answer Session until 4pm EDT

The conference will conclude with a Q & A from questions submitted by attendees.
